member, That the Fire King had cast his burning ember O'er an - oth - er fa - ted ci - ty in our o - cean, Tho' the brave firemen toil'd with all devotion, To laugh at the ef - forts yet it ran - nie, But the brave hearted fireman and me - chanic, The best and the noblest in the land; As the woo - ful tid - ing flash'd along the wire, At the ter - ri - ble ea - tas - tro - phe so seem'd; And soar - ed with its fie - ry tongue still higher O'er chimney - top, stea - ple and land. Far brighter than the soldier's record go - ry Are the names of those who live in song and dire, That Boston, beauteous city, was on fire, And was sink'neath the fiend's relentless hand. spire, Till all was one vast wave of fire, As the light 'round the hor - i - zon gleam'd.

 sto - ry, Who restore a ci - ty to her former glo - ry, And build her up, if pos - si - ble, more grand.

all the world heav'd one great sigh of pi-ty; Strong men in an-guish pray'd Bos-ton will rise a-gain, re-mem-ber! Like Chi-ca-go from the ground,

For-vent pray'r to heav'n for aid, Be-fore the fire in ru-ins laid Fair Bos-ton's fa-ted ci-ty.
And brave men will be found, Who will re-build a fair-er town Be-fore the next No-venber.
